Speaker at the Thorndale Chamber banquet Monday night gave some perspective on the prospects of city and small town development with this anecdote:

Said Ray Sissel, public service manager, Texas Power & Light: A small man, standing next to a large fellow, jibed: "Why aren't you the heavy weight champion of the world?"

The big man responded: "Why aren't you the world's light weight champion?"

And so it is, Sissel said in substance. Thorndale can't aspire to be as large as Dallas, for instance, but Thorndale can aspire to be the best in it's class.

His analogy is sound. Each community in its size range, in this urbanizing era of U.S. development, can hope to be the best within its means, ability and ambition. Communities with the substance to grow will retain size in relation to the growth of much larger cities.

How well they do this resides in foresight, aspiration and commitment for a "growth stability," which could be defined as enlarging enough to maintain basic attractions for both new and present residents.

This suggests, ironically, a permanent need for less rigidity in community attitude, yet a constant stability which requires constant growth.

Though attitudes vary widely, 105 joins with numerous observers who conclude that communications and highways are eliminating provincial thinking. More people want more of the same things, share more of wider experience; and at present most of them head for the cities.

But the nature of Americans somehow demands that most want space to live in, and when economic opportunity is possible in smaller towns, will take it.

We might say we are becoming a nation of city dwellers from the country. And whether for weekend recreation, new plant employment or retirement, many Americans will choose a smaller town if it meets the standards.

That is why Houstonians, for example, build in the suburbs or drive up to 175 miles for a recreation weekend, and why industry often decentralizes production plants into smaller towns.

And that is why Sissel's analogy is a good one. Small towns and cities, understanding this, can become "light weight champions" by establishing their class, their appeal to people, old and new.

Group Hears Advisor

Steering Group To Meet Friday

A seven-man steering committee will meet Friday night to discuss recreation possibilities in Milam County following a meeting Monday night of 50 Cameron and county residents who named the group.

The county-wide group was invited to hear a talk by Boyd Andrews, A&M Extension Recreation specialist, discuss the possibilities of recreational development in Milam County. They represented about 30 of 75 groups in Milam County invited by the Milam Technical Action Committee.

Voted to the steering committee, by show of hands after floor nominations, were: Narvie Caperton and Dr. George Bowman of Cameron; J. D. Peeples of Milano; W. T. Pearson and Barton Sutton of Rockdale; Clyde Moore of Davilla; and Marvin Handrick of Thorndale.

Henry Ivey, Milam-Burleson FHA manager, and chairman of the Technical Action Committee, planners of the meeting, discussed possibilities of financing recreation development through individual or non-profit associations with FHA loan funds.

Introduced by County Agent J. D. Moore, Andrews outlined developments in recreation demands that have contributed toward establishment of a department of Recreation and Parks at Texas A&M.

DEMAND STUDIED

Greater public demands for recreation, he said, are being studied in Texas. Texans spend some $400 million annually to hunt and fish and $15 million goes to landowners who provide recreation facilities.

By definition, he said, rural and rural recreation is an activity or service sold or marketed for a fee on rural land, including hunting leases, picnic grounds, horseback trails and similar fields.

He said more leisure time, increased income, population increase, better transportation and increasing popularity of recreation all contribute to a demand exceeding the public facilities such as the Huntsville Park.

"This demand," he continued, "must be satisfied, if it is, on private development."

Andrews said studies show that having deer on land increases land value from $10 to $50 per acre. Then he cited landowner

Mrs. Hubert Nance, science department instructor and assistant in the Fair, said there have been 20 projects entered in the math division, 51 in the physical science senior high division and 35 in the biological science senior high division.

Thirty-one 9th grade students have entered projects in the biological Science division and eighteen in the physical science division.

Assisting in the Science Fair along with Mrs. Nance are science and Mathematics instructors Fred Johns, Ken Fuqua and Andy Springer.

The projects will be judged by personnel from Temple Junior College. These judges will be Charles Stout, biological, Paul Knox, Physical, and Douglas Ferrill, mathematical.

Science projects will be set up at Yoe High School by noon Tuesday, March 2. They will be judged in the afternoon and the Science Fair will be open to the public from 6 until 9 p.m. Tuesday evening and from 8 until 12 noon on Wednesday, March 3. Mrs. Nance said the usual number of entries during the past several years has been from 120 to 140 projects and this will be the biggest show the school has ever had as far as she can remember.

Physician Given Final Tribute

Dr. Thomas S. Barkley, 79, the oldest doctor in the county in years of practicing medicine, died last Thursday at his home in Rockdale.

His death ended 52 years of practicing medicine in the Milam County area where he watched the world of medicine change from the horse-and-buggy days to the present.

With offices in Rockdale, Dr. Barkley was associated with the St. Edward Hospital in Cameron where he was held in high esteem for his work as a physician.

Born November 11, 1885, in Rice (Navarro County) he gained his medical degree from Southwestern University in Georgetown. His internship was served at St. Paul's Sanitarium in Dallas and for the next year he was professor at SMU's medical school.

From Dallas, where he was with Dr. John O. McReynolds, eye, ear, nose and throat clinic, he moved to Rockdale in partnership with his uncle, Dr. I P. Sessions, long-time Rockdale doctor.

He married Alice Graves, a Milam native and they had one daughter, Mrs. Alice Elloie Wilson of New Orleans. Two granddaughters, Judith and Elizabeth Wilson, also survive.

DEVOTED PHYSICIAN

In the half century that followed, he saved thousands of lives and delivered well over 4,000 babies.

He was called on from many sections of the county and in early days made his rounds in the horse and buggy. Numerous times he was forced to operate on floors and dining tables.

When cars and roads improved, Dr. Barkley worked through the night driving many miles to meet emergencies and still kept his regular hours on the following days.

Dr. Barkley also helped many people with non-medical problems and became known as a sort of father-confessor to some. His advice was always sincere. As a physician, it mattered not whether the patient could pay for his services and no person was ever turned away.

His nurse of 27 years, Mrs. Sara Skrivanek, saw him make calls when he was a lot sicker than the people he was treating.

GAINED HONORS

The devotion Dr. Barkley had for his profession did not go unnoticed. He was made an honorary member of the Texas Medical

State Rep. Schiller Co-Sponsors Bill 5, Teacher Pay Raise

The "$45 for '65" teacher pay raise bill, introduced by Rep. Geo. T. Hinson of Mineola, has gained the co-sponsorship of State Rep. Milton Schiller.

Schiller had gone on record earlier in the year in favor of more pay for the teachers in District 45, the district composed of Robertson, Burleson and Milam County which he represents.

"I told them (the teachers) I would do whatever I could to help them. I considered Rep. Hinson's bill, which asks for a $45 across-the-board increase for public school teachers, a good one and one that I would want to help pass," Rep. Schiller said.

Schiller recently received a letter from Rep. Hinson thanking him for co-sponsoring House Bill 5. "Administrators, teachers, parents, school boards and professional people of your district should appreciate your personal effort toward passage of this important legislation, which in the end will benefit so many people, including the school children themselves" Hinson wrote the 45th District Representative.

Rep. Schiller said he has received hundreds of letters and he wished to thank teachers for writing him on this bill.

Schools Close As Travel Hazardous

Rain topped by sleet and snow threw a blanket over Milam County as temperatures zoomed to 20 degrees early Wednesday creating hazardous driving conditions and closing county schools.

The late-winter storm brought .39 inches of rain accompanied by high wind to the Cameron area late Tuesday and added .25 inches of snow and an inch of sleet early Wednesday morning.

County officials report that highways and county roads were thawing Wednesday but another 15-18 degree hard freeze Wednesday night was expected to keep an icy grip on the county.

All Cameron schools and Mrs. Hubert's Kindergarten were closed as well as schools in Milano, Buckholts, Maysfield, Rosebud, Burlington, Rockdale, Gause, Marek, Branchville and Thorndale. Opening of schools today would depend on road conditions, officials said.

Temperatures reported at midday Wednesday were a 42 degree drop from the high Tuesday. Twenty seven degrees were reported from Water Supt. Alvin Hefft Wednesday with temperatures expected to rise to a high of 35 degrees. Tuesday had a high of 69 and a low of 35 degrees.

City and county officials urged motorists to use extreme caution on highways and streets. Highway crews sanded bridges in the area and checked for icy conditions. Cameron police department issued a warning for motorists to park their vehicles parallel on streets in downtown Cameron.

Weather observers forecast five-day temperatures would be two to five degrees below the normal low of 38 to 45 degrees and normal highs of 65-70 degrees with little or no precipitation and warmer temperatures over the weekend. The high expected Thursday was forecast at 45 degrees.

Hefft reported temperatures over the past week as follows:

Activities Set For Public School Week March 1-5

"Since the founding of the Texas Public School system 110 years ago, the growth and development of our State has been tied closely to the educational advantages available to Texas citizens and depend upon the continuance and furtherance of educational opportunities for all Texas children," Supt. Zeigler added. "Public Schools Week is an appropriate week for giving each pupil and each citizen who visits in the schools a better understanding of the vitally important responsibility which rests upon the public schools in a country governed by and for the people."

FARMERS & PETROLEUM

U. S. farmers use more petroleum than does any other single industry, according to information from the Bureau of the Census. Petroleum products are used not only to power and lubricate machinery but also to control weeds and grass, insect pests on both crops and livestock and for hundreds of other uses.

The female octopus guards her eggs until they hatch five to seven weeks after laying, eats nothing during that time, and dies after they hatch.

KNOW YOUR INSECT ENEMY

THE TOMATO FRUITWORM

This insect is called the cotton bollworm, corn earworm or tomato fruitworm, depending on where you find it. All three names apply to this serious pest that annually ruins crops worth many millions of dollars.

The plump greenish or brownish, striped caterpillars are restless feeders on tomatoes. They roam over several fruits, spoiling each one without eating the equivalent of a single one. As high as 80 percent of the crop may be damaged beyond use by tomato fruitworms.

Moths appear in early spring. Soon after emerging, females begin to lay pearly-white eggs the size of a pinhead on leaves. When larvae hatch, they feed sparingly on leaves, eventually finding their way to fruits. They feed on tomatoes from the time fruits are formed until they are ripe. When mature, the larvae drop to the ground, enter the soil and pupate.

Growers have had difficulty controlling fruitworms because most pesticides cannot be applied close to harvest without creating residue problems.

During 1960, a new insecticide was introduced to control tomato fruitworms. This new material, [illegible], is a carbamate and is chemically different from chlorinated hydrocarbons such as DDT and other common pesticides.

Growers can use it up to and including the day of harvest without exceeding residue tolerances. Scientists point out that this carbamate combines effectiveness against insects with greater safety to humans and animals.

SCS Urges Completion Of Brushy Creek Flood Prevention Project

By SCS Staff

Two recent floods on Brushy Creek in January and February have caused a considerable amount of damage. Some people are wondering if the Brushy Creek flood prevention project is doing any good.

Here are some of the facts pertaining to the project. There are 35 flood retarding structures that have been completed in the Brushy Creek watershed out of a planned total of 59. These 35 structures retained over 30,000 acre feet of water during the recent periods of flooding.

This is enough water to cover 47 square miles of Brushy Creek bottomland one foot deep. If these 35 structures had not been completed, 47 square miles of additional water would have been added to the floods recently experienced on Brushy Creek. The addition of this much extra water would have made the two floods in January and February more disastrous.

If all 59 structures had been completed, approximately 68,006 acre feet of water would have been detained behind the structures. This amount of water is sufficient to cover 106 square miles of the Brushy Creek bottom one foot deep.

However, the Brushy Creek bottom covers only about 50 square miles. The amount of flood water detained behind the structures would have reduced the depth of flooding by two feet on the entire 50 square miles of bottomland.

To really control the flooding on Brushy Creek, the remaining 24 structures need to be built as soon as possible. Simultaneously the channel improvement work consisting of deepening, widening and to some extent straightening the channel needs to be done. When the entire project is completed including the channel work, this stacking up of water on lower Brushy would be prevented except during periods of prolonged heavy rainfall. The greatest obstacle to construction of the remaining dams and channel improvement work is the need to provide easements to permit construction of the remaining uncompleted work.

The two floods on Brushy in January and February caused a great deal of damage. However, this damage would have been considerable greater if the 53 dams of the Brushy Creek project had not already been built.

A Day At The Capitol

Writer Follows Schiller On Busy Legislative Day

By Lloyd Albertson
Herald Feature Writer

What does a member of the House of Representatives do in Austin when the Texas Legislature is in session:

He's down there to represent his district. And to vote on bills. Everybody knows that. The highlights of such activities are reported in newspapers, on radio and TV.

But the job must include a lot more than that. And it occurred to this writer that a running account of a representative's day probably would make informative reading.

Rep. Milton Schiller of Cameron, starting his second term for the 45th District, agreed and offered to let me tag along as an observer.

Monday two weeks ago was the day to make the trip and have a look - see.

DAY STARTS EARLY

It was immediately clear that a representative's day starts early. Rep. Schiller usually spends his weekends at home in Cameron and drives back to Austin on Monday morning. "I'll pick you up at six o'clock," he had told me.

He was also giving a lift back to school to a University of Texas co-ed, Miss Jo Ann Anderson of Cameron, so she wouldn't miss an early morning class. It was hardly a good morning for the trip, with drizzle and fog making driving difficult. But we arrived in plenty of time for Miss Anderson to make her first class.

It was about 7:40 -- and Rep. Schiller's first appointment of the day was an 8 o'clock breakfast for the Aeronautics Committee at the Commodore Perry Hotel. This was a preliminary to a hearing later in the day before the Appropriations Committee to request funds for several of Texas small towns airports. So we parted downtown, with plans to meet at the Capitol an hour or so later.

He was at a meeting of the Rules Committee, his secretary told me, when I arrived at his office. The session was over a few minutes afterward.

"Youll have a chance to go to a committee hearing later," he told me.

Since nothing more was scheduled until the House convened at 11 o'clock, Rep. Schiller spent a few minutes reading his mail. Then he suggested we start for the House chamber -- and possibly on the way stop by the Speaker's office to see if there was a chance for me to meet the new House Speaker, Ben Barnes.

REPRESENTATIVES GATHER

A number of representatives was gathering in little groups or heading for their seats on the House floor. One of them, from an East Texas district, hailed Rep. Schiller as we started down the corridor, and he introduced me and explained why I was there.

As the East Texan shook hands, he told me: "He'll keep you busy, if you follow him around. He moves fast. You'll have trouble keeping up with him."

That was not the only time I heard that remark during the day. Rep. Schiller apparently has gained a reputation among his colleagues for moving fast.

As we started on down the corridor, we met one of the most widely known House members, Rep. W. S. (Bill) Heatly. Chairman of the important Appropriations Committee, he had had Rep. Schiller as one of the committee members during the last session.

There was a short wait in the Speaker's outer office, then Rep. Schiller took me in to meet House Speaker Barnes. Elected in a fast campaign at the session's beginning, he is tall and sandy haired and has a firm handshake.

The Speaker nodded when told I was there to get a story, and said it sounded like an interesting idea. "Rep. Schiller is my chairman of the Contingent Expenses Committee, you know," he said.

ENTER CHAMBER

Many of the representatives were already in the big House chamber when we entered a few minutes later. Among them was Rep. Thomas Lee, a freshman representative from San Antonio, and the House's only Chinese member.

Rep. Schiller remarked as we moved on after meeting him: "Tom says that when he announced as a candidate last year, everybody told him he didn't have a Chinaman's chance to win."

When the House convened a few minutes later at 11 o'clock, it turned out to be a brief session. After the opening prayer and several bills were read, a motion was made to adjourn until 10 a.m. Tuesday.

Rep. Schiller left his seat and came off the floor a few minutes later. He had received a not from a Temple optician, Dr. Bob Elkins, waiting in the nearby visitor's room. He asked to talk to Rep. Schiller. Dr. Elkins was there, he explained, to ask that opticians be included in a bill being considered to increase medical benefits in the state's health and welfare program for older citizens.

Rep. Schiller had returned to his seat when the House adjourned a short time later. As he came off the floor, he was joined by two Caldwell citizens, Mayor Steve Shiller and Supt. of Schools Cecil Brown, there to attend the Appropriations Committee hearing. Since it was almost noon, Rep. Schiller suggested we all drive downtown to a hotel for lunch.

APPROPRIATIONS HEARING

First on the schedule that afternoon was the hearing before the Appropriations Committee. Starting at 1:15 the well attended session was held in one of the committee rooms. Rep. Schiller accompanied Brown and Mayor Shiller to the meeting. Purpose was to request an appropriation of $200,000 for small town airport construction in Texas.

One or two speakers said a modern airport was a necessity if a small town hoped to attract industry, since most large companies had planes for their executives' use, and that federal funds were seldom available to small towns. Mayor Shiller was among the speakers and made a request for the Caldwell airport project. The hearing ended at 2:30.

It was over just in time for Rep. Schiller to make his next appointment. He had received a note requesting all Committee chairmen to come to Speaker Barnes' office for a gavel presentation ceremony at 2:30.

There was a short wait in the outer office. The presentation was being made individually. Then Rep. Schiller went in and received his gavel and a handshake from Speaker Ben Barnes.

It was a few minutes after three. There were no more appointments, Rep. Schiller said when I asked what was next, and added, "I'd better get back to my office and get busy on my mail."

LETTERS, REPLIES

The office -- Room 353 -- is shared with David G. Haines of Bryan. Rep. Schiller read through a sheaf of letters and dictated a number of replies to his secretary, Miss Rose Mary Eidmon.

Several of the letters were concerned with the proposed teachers pay raise -- the so-called "45 in 65" bill -- and Rep. Schiller answered he was in favor of the bill and was its co-author.

When the mail was out of the way, he said he would like to talk to a couple of representatives at their offices about up-coming bills. He didn't have too much luck in this, however -- everybody was out. In the next 20 minutes he talked with several other people, including a Farm Bureau representative and a state senator, with whom he discussed the beef labeling bill.

"And that's about it for today," he told me when we were back in his office. "I have a couple more appointments that will keep me here until about 5:15. But you've got a pretty good idea of what the job is like."

When I asked if he had a committee meeting that night, he shook his head.

"Not tonight. Probably there will be some later in the week. That's when we really start to put in the hours. . . . By the way, the civics class of Rockdale High School will be here tomorrow morning. I'm due to take them on a tour of the Capitol. . . . ."

That is an account of one day's activities of a representative in the Texas Legislature. Rep. Schiller's routine the next day probably was different. But perhaps there are fewer questions about what a legislator does.

"NO, MR. PRESIDENT"

It seems reasonable enough. Congress, debating a proposed new law, has doubts about its constitutionality. Why not simply ask the Supreme Court for an advisory opinion? Sooner or later, the Court (sitting only a block away) will have to decide the question anyhow. Why wait for a long drawn-out test case? Why put a law on the books, and enforce it, only to find out years later that it was unconstitutional all the time?

But the Court would refuse to give Congress an advisory opinion. It would also refuse to advise the President, if he wanted to know -- for instance -- whether he had the power to issue a sweeping new executive order. Both Congress and the President would have to take their chances, without any guidance from the Supreme Court.

The Court's hands-off policy dates back to a famous exchange of letters in the summer of 1793, between the nation's first President and the nation's first Chief Justice. George Washington, trying to stay neutral between warring France and England, wanted an advisory opinion on 29 points of international law. But John Jay, speaking for the Court, sent a terse reply that amounted to "No, Mr. President." And ever since, the Court has insisted that its job is to decide cases, not to give advice.

This reluctance has been criticized. No doubt it would be useful to know, right away, if a proposed law would be unconstitutional. Delay in finding out can cause major complications. Thus, by the time the Court threw out the National Industrial Recovery Act in 1935, more than 1,000 government agencies were already set up and hard at work.

But the advisory opinion has perils. It could put the Court too close to the legislative or executive process, too close to politics. It could blur the lines of separation between the three branches of government.

Perhaps more important, an advisory opinion is only a theoretical answer to a theoretical question. It is formed without the sharpening, clarifying effect of an actual conflict. It is formed without the clash of argument between parties having a personal stake in the outcome. It is not the law's way of reaching a decision.

In a few states, the courts do give advisory opinions to the local legislature or governor. But even there they do it sparingly, in only a few special stuations. Most legal authorities feel that, as a matter of general policy, John Jay's "No, Mr. President" was the wisest answer.

17 Women Volunteers

Exercise Instructors At St. Anthony Find Work Fun

By Lois Sapp

After three months of conducting physical education classes at the school the women's group leader, Mrs. Louis Hollas, said, "The mothers are actually enjoying it."

The instruction group still consists of the original women who volunteered their services in November with the exception of one person who moved from Cameron. Mrs. Hollas believes this fact proves that the women are finding the physical education classes attractive to them.

"The exercises are also making us feel better, although it would be better if we could continue to exercise through the wk," she said and continued, "it would even be fun to have a day for the instructors to get together by ourselves." The possibility of having a group of women, who would be interested in regular exercise classes, was also voiced by the group's leader.

At present the instructors work in teams and handle three fifteen minute classes four days a week. With eight teams and one substitute, the women rotate days and only have to conduct classes once every two weeks.

INSTRUCT 90 PUPILS

Each group has about 90 children in the three groups from grades three through eighth. Classes are held from 2 to 3 p.m. Monday through Thursday.

Mothers use two sets of exercises, one for the lower and another for the higher grades. Physical education exercise recordings are used with the women demonstrating the various exercises and then doing them along with the pupils.

Elementary exercises deal mostly with the waist and breathing exercises. The older groups undergo the basic push up exercises along with bending, leg and stomach muscle exercises and do harder and more complex bodily actions.

The classes are held in Simon-George Hall which creates one hardship on the women instructors. A class is being held nearby and the leaders must also keep the students as quiet as possible.

"Another hardship is that by exercising only every other week, we do not keep ourselves in condition, but what we do keeps us more active than before we became volunteer instructors," Mrs. Hollas added.

FILL NEED

The need for the women volunteers came up after school teachers found the program to be too time consuming, thus keeping them from their regular classes longer than desired.

When the physical education classes began last year, following the purchase of recordings and equipment by the Parent-Teachers Club, school personnel conducted the classes themselves.

In November the P-TC asked for volunteers to instruct the program and the response was overwhelming. The mothers in taking over the program relieved the teachers who can now teach one of their two grades while the other grade is in physical education.

"We are having excellent response and cooperation by the mothers, students and the school," the group leader said.

Serving the school as physical education leaders along with Mrs. Hollas are: Mmes. Rosalee Leonard, Marritta Sheguit, Mary Ann Ehler, Patsy Matula, Eleanor Hollas, Mary Trdy, Doris Hanel, Henrietta Chandler, Catherine Anderle, Marquerita Michalka, Teresa McAtee, Mildred Hanel, Helen Massengale, Frances McDermott, Zdenka Matula and JoAnn Zarosky.

Pacific Fruit And Vegetable Co. To Open Area Plant

The Pacific Fruit and Vegetable Company, with offices all over the United States and Canada, have completed arrangements to open a Tomato Green Shed at the Cedar Springs gymnasium.

Installation of equipment will begin March 10 at the site located 11 miles east of Rosebud Adequate directional signs are being erected on Hwy. 77.

Mrs. Lloyd Wheelus, district manager of Pacific Fruit & Vegetable Company, spent three days last week completing arrangements for the new outlet.

She stated that the local plant would buy all tomatoes grown in this area and farmers could depend on a market price. The plant will also require some local employment which she stated would help the economy of the Cameron, Rosebud, Bremond area.

"The market is expected to be good this year since the crop in the valley is almost half what it usually is," Mrs. Wheelus said. "Most of the growers in the valley are raising a small canning tomato unsuitable for table use when fresh, therefore, this area is in demand for greater production."

Mrs. Ray Stimmel is local representative of the company and further information may be obtained by calling her at JU 3-4722 or writing Route 1, Rosebud.

Shell Wildcats Will Spud Soon

The Shell Oil Company No. 1 Nell Ross, deep Smackover wildcat located in southeastern Milam County, is due to be started within a few days, according to one oil field source.

Derrick reportedly has been erected for the test, which is permitted to 15,000 feet or the Smackover.

The Ross has been delayed by weather conditions. It is located in a sandy area, and board roads had to be built in to the drill site so rig and other equipment could be brought in, but were washed out by heavy rains about two weeks ago and had to be rebuilt.

The Ross wildcat is located about 8 miles east of Milano and 4 miles southwest of Gause. It is one mile north of the No. 1 Adoue Estate which Shell drilled to 14,457 feet and plugged last year.

STEERING-

80 PER CENT SEEK WATER

He said research showed that 80 per cent of people on an outing, though not using the water to fish or boat on, "want to be near water." He cited tinkle Lake, near Nacogdoches, a 50-acre lake, whose facilities paid for themselves three times in 10 years.

Andrews also noted that recreation facilities can attract tourists, its development can serve as a "catalyst or stepping stone to industry." And he said he was surprised at the emphasis on recreation in East Texas where several counties are basing their entire economy on recreation.

He said an area must figure "what you have," location, access and individual operators of facilities. Andrews noted that Milam County is in the center of Dallas San Antonio, Houston urban areas, excluding Dallas about 2 million people. And the county has three major highways, plenty of water, and part of the county has sufficient wildlife for hunting, riding trails and similar attractions, he said.

Following Andrews' presentation, Ivey told the group that Milam Countians spend about $350,000 to $400,000 on recreation, mostly out of county.

He said FHA (Farm Home Administration) does make loans for recreation purposes if individuals are unable to secure credit from private sources. He noted a few individual loans for rural fishing facilities, and said a lot of loans have been made in the state.

Then Ivey described that three association (group) loans have been made in Texas, two in Burleson County (a golf course and saddle club).

MILAM POSSIBILITIES

He noted that Milam County has plenty of water, land ideally suited for wildlife, money for such development would exceed what individuals would want to invest.

He noted two types of group or association loans:

ONE -- Watershed loan to nonprofit corporation, developed with FHA and SCS aid under state laws, giving security, voting bonds and property taxes. Interest is at 2.8 to 3 percent for reservoir funds on a 50-year loan up to $5 million.

TWO -- Since 1962, FHA-approved loans for recreation groups for any type of rural recreation to serve rural people. Sixty-five per cent of the membership must be rural people or farmers. Some loans can be made up to $500,000 and insured loans can be made up to $1 million for 40 years through private lenders.

Once approved, "the government wants as little to do with it as possibile" except for an annual inspection and assurance that it is operating on a sound financial basis, Ivey said.

Ivey said the biggest thing is selecting the committee, "five to seven of the strongest, most civic-minded people you can get."

PASTOR'S STATEMENT

The Rev. George Bonhard, pastor of Marak St. Cyril and Methodius Church, read a prepared statement in which he urged that the group put money into music, drama and books for youth rather than additional recreation such as more swimming pools.

He said the program should not be outside, but inside, that "life for youth lacks depth." We need more culture, the better things, he said. And he announced his efforts at the Marak church to present drama and music, soon to open an enlarged hall for plays and choral groups. And he invited people to visit Marak during an upcoming open house.

Following Rev. Bonhard's statement, Moore, acting as temporary chairman, asked that th group nominate members of a steering committee from the floor. Cameron Mayor Bassel Wilson moved that nominations be made from the floor and Dr. Bowman seconded. The motion carried by a show of hands. Then eight men, including E. A. Perrin of Cameron were nominated from the floor. Perrin asked to withdraw his name since he was active in the Elm Creek Watershed which is continuing work on a project of a number of water control structures.

County Judge Don Humble spoke briefly in favor of recreation facilities, saying he believed it to be a "sound, basic investment" for Milam County.

Thirty-six people attended from Cameron, seven from Rockdale, two from Buckholts, and one each from Thorndale, Davilla and Tanglewood.

Zavrels Observe Golden Wedding

Saturday, February 13, was a memorable day for Mr. and Mrs. V. L. Zavrel of Cameron. On that day they celebrated their Golden Wedding anniversary with their children, grandchildren, great grandchildren, former schoolmates and lifelong friends.

The day began with Holy Mass celebrated at 9 a.m. in St. Monica's Church by Rev. John Geiser. Following the service they gathered at Simon George Hall, some to talk of the good old days and others to enjoy a few games of dominoes.

Dinner was served with the Clergy, Sisters, honored couple and their children seated at the main table. A white lace cloth, underlined with gold, covered the table and napkins were embossed with a gold "50.' Centering the table was an arrangement of gold roses, Arrangements of yellow flowers centered tables where guests were seated.

The Zavrels cut the first slice of cake which was three tiers supported by four swans and pillars, and topped with four golden bells on golden hearts, and a golden 50th anniversary wreath.

The Zavrels (she is the former Miss Maria Sklenar) were married Feb. 10, 1915, at Sts. Cyril and Methodius Church in Marak. The Rev. K. Kacar performed the marriage ceremony.

The entire family was present for the anniversary observance. They include: Sister M. Genevieve, St. Ludmilla's Academy, Shiner; Miss Frances Zavrel, Schulenburg; Mr. and Mrs. Jow Rozner (Matilda) of Athold; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hubnik (Helen) of Cameron; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Jochec (Annie Mae) of Marak; Mr. and Mrs. Ladis Zavrel of Buckholts; Mr. and Mrs. Joe Zavrel of Temple; Frank and Louis Zavrel of Rockdale.

IRS Lists Rules On Tax Exemptions For Dependent Children

Taxpayers are entitled to one $600 exemption on their Federal income tax returns for 1964 for each dependent child, A. P. Andrews, administrative officer of Internal Revenue in Temple explained today. In tax law, the term "child" includes a stepchild, a legally adopted child, or a child placed by an authorized agency in the taxpayer's home for legal adoption. Generally, the child must be a citizen or resident of the United States, or a resident of Canada, Mexico, Panama, or the Canal Zone.

The general rule is that a dependent must have had less than $600 income for the year. However, if the child was under 19 years of age, or if the child was a full-time student during some part of each of 5 months of the year, the parents may claim his exemption regardless of the amount of the child's income, provided they furnished more than one-half of the child's support. The parents cannot claim the exemption if the child was married and filed a joint return with his or her spouse.

If a child was born or died during the year, a full $600 exemption is allowable if the child met the dependency requirements during the part of the year he was alive.

Milam Rec Possibilities.....

Recreation facilities, much needed in Milam County, can result from the organizational meeting of some 50 Milam Countains Monday night.

They heard a report from an Extension recreation specialist, heard how financing and organization can be achieved and voted for a seven-man steering committee to pursue the subject.

Present were representatives from about 40 organizations of 75 contacted in the county. Named to the steering group were men from Rockdale, Cameron, Milano, Thorndale and Davilla.

Examples of the tremendous demand for recreation in Texas included one given by Boyd Andrews, Extension specialist, which pointed out that Texans now spend $400 million annually and in the next 20 years will have more time and money to invest in leisure or recreation time.

He noted that 80 per cent of the people who seek outdoor recreation want to be near water, whether or not they actually use it for fishing, boating, water skiing or swimming. And that brought the group to the subject of a lake.

The seven-man panel meets this week to pursue the possibilities and, according to the pattern of such building programs, supported through FHA-backed financing, a survey will be one of the first orders of business: to see what recreation facilities people would want and how much.

The program has merit and could turn a great part of rural Milam County toward a new role in our economy.

What's New In Viet Nam...

Some several coups and counter-coups later, military strongman General Nguyen Khanh is out and another military junta heads the South Viet government.

A civilian government, talked of a week ago, failed to materialize. And the phantom of frustration hangs still heavy on U.S. involvement there. The U.S., in fact, has little time to comment on who seems to be running things.

More raids on North Viet Nam are assured by the U.S., while Nanoi leadership has the choice of whose aid, Russia or China's they most want to use with some semblence of autonomy. Nearby example, North Korea, is all but an extension of Red China. And North Viet would like to keep some control.

Big question for them, under any circumstances: "Can they?"

The same question of self determination repeats itself to the revolving door of Saigon governments.

And it more appears that U.S. military activity will increase, making local government even more dependent on U.S. might.

The same frustrations, the same lack of local enthusiasm, dating from the French involvement in that part of the world, all but ended in 1954 at Dien Bien Phu, is our portion of this Asian breadbasket, Oriental "powder keg" or what you will.

Dateline Austin...

Higher Education Bill Faces Test

By Vern Sanford
TEXAS Press Association

AUSTIN -- Gov. John Connally passed the first legislative test of his program for improving higher education.

House of Representatives overwhelmingly approved the bill to name an 18-member commission to decide which colleges and universities shall teach what, to assign fields of teaching, and to take over state supervision of academic work in the 32 junior colleges.

There were many amendments to the bill by Reps. Dick Cory of Victoria and Charles Wilson of Lufkin. But none diverted the bill from its original purpose as laid out by the Governor's Committee on Education Beyond the High School.

Shoals lie ahead, because some strong senators are against such a delegation of powers, or oppose some phases of the bill as passed by the House. Sen. W. T. Moore of Bryan will handle the measure in the Senate. He expects to move on it within the next week or so.

Sen. Dorsey Hardeman is opposed to some of Connally's programs. This has led to talk of pressure tactics. Forces of Speaker Ben Barnes, who support Connally, may hold up action on Hardeman's bill to transfer San Angelo College to state-supported status on Sept. 1.

Hardeman, long a power in the Senate, heads the Senate Finance Committee which will make the fiscal decisions on many programs. This key position makes it vital to onnally that he had acquiescence, if not support, from Hardeman.

The San Angelo senator, who represents a West Texas region as big as some states, demonstrated his power twice recently. He blocked, at least temporarily, a rule change designed to delay or defeat the $45 a month teacher pay raise proposed by the Texas State Teachers Association. He also amended the "equal rights for women' bill to make the measure inapplicable to present statutes. Amended bill passed with Lt. Gov. Preston Smith breaking the 15-15 tie. Sponsor Sen. Moore said this amendment ruined the legislation.

REDISTRICTING -- All bills to reapportion congressional, state senatorial or legislative districts will go to standing subcommittee in both the House and the Senate.

Rep. Gus Mutscher of Brenham decided to try for objectivity. He picked chairmen from opposite sections of the State from the section subcommittees will be studying.

He named Rep. Gene Hendryx of Alpine to the Area I subcommittee handling redistricting of East Texas; Rep. Menton J. Murray of Harlingen to the Area II subcommittee on North Texas; Rep. Red Simpson of Amarillo to the Area III subcommittee on South Texas; and Rep. James Slider of Naples to the Area IV subcommittee on West Texas.

Senate subcommittee on State Senate redistricting measures is heavy with representation from the western part of the State and the lower Gulf Coast. At the insistence of the committee at large, Sen. Louis Crump of San Saba, chairman of the Senate Redistricting Committee, appointed himself chairman of the study subcommittee.

Then he picked Sen. Dorsey Hardeman of San Angelo, Sen. Criss Cole of Houston, Sen. Bruce Reagan of Corpus Christi, and Sen. William T. Moore of Bryan to serve with him.

Sen. Crump also will head the congressional redistricting subcommittee composed of Sen. Ralph Hall of Rockwall, Sen. Abraham Kazen of Laredo, Sen. Martin Dies Jr. of Lufkin, and Sen. George Parkhouse of Dallas.

REGULATORY AUTHORITY -- A bill by Sen. Tom Creighton of Mineral Wells to give the State Parks & Wildlife Commission complete regulatory authority over hunting and fishing in all 254 counties ran into temporary trouble in the Senate when a vote to suspend rules for its consideration failed. Vote was 18-13 for suspension, but a four-fifths majority is required.

About 150 of the States counties now are under the Commission's jurisdiction. Gov. Connally asks that all 254 be included.

ECONOMY COMMISSION - A commission study which experts testified could result in savings up to $8,000,000 a year in state government operations has House approval and now is in the Senate.

Called the "Little Hoover Commission,' the survey is aimed at achieving "economy and efficiency" in the executive branch of the government.

Rep. Dick Cory of Victoria is the author.

TB PROGRAM URGED - House and Senate committees heard convincing arguments that tuberculosis can be eradicated in Texas within a decade through new drugs and treatment methods and an intensive program of care, case-finding and follow-up.

Senate Public Health Committee immediately approved setting the program in motion in a group of South - Central Texas Counties around San Antonio and Mexican border counties from El Paso to Brownsville.

House committee placed the bill in a friendly subcommittee for a weeks study.

Plan would call for State Department of Health to take over all hospitals and consolidate the entire program in a special division. Contract care of patients near their homes where possible is an important part of the program.

OIL - Oil production will be down a bit in March. Railroad Commission cut allowables 11,000 barrels a day after hearing discouraging forecasts of need for Texas oil during the month.

Oilmen got House committee approval of the oil and gas pooling bill backed by several oil associations. Strong opposition had been voiced by the Texas Farm Bureau, but the committee approved it with only Rep. Amando Canales of San Diego opposing the vote.

Rep. Wayne Gibbens of Breckenridge hopes to get it through the House this week. It was passed by the Senate two weeks ago.

In simple terms, the bill would allow landowners or leaseholders who do not have enough land to obtain a drilling permit from the Railroad Commission to get the Commission to order adjoining operators to bring the small tract into a pool. Likewise, owners of large tracts can force the pooling of small tracts for oil and gas development.

TOURIST BOOSTERS ORGANIZE Representatives of commercial tourist attractions have formed Texas Attractions Association to assure visitors a fair return on their fun dollar.

—OLD PHILOSOPHER—

Philosopher Says He's Puzzled By The Drive To Get Everybody To Travel More

Dear editar:

According to a news item I read last night, Washington officials are suggesting we put a sort of tariff on tourists leaving this country every summer, in the amount of $100 a head.

As I understand it, American tourists are spending over a billion dollars a year visiting abroad, and apparently on the theory that they're going to spend everything they have on them, Washington has suggested we tax them $100 just before they leave, which would be $100 they sure wouldn't spend over there. At least we'd keep some of the money in this country.

I don't have an opinion on this proposal, as that's one tax that sure wouldnt hit me, as I ain't going.

Understand, I don't quarrel with anybody who wants to visit abroad let him go if he wants to, but my theory is that it's time the Europeans came over here and looked at us. After all, when you come to think of it, the land holding up Buckingham Place in London is not one year older than the land in this Johnson grass farm. I estimate they were constructed at about the same time. One is just as ancient as the other, and both are equally favorable toward government support.

And while I can't imagine any Englishman spending his money to come over here and look at me and this farm, neither can I imagine me going over there to look at him and his. Of course I know travel is supposed to broaden a person, enlarge his horizon, but I have seem some Americans who have traveled abroad and I can't always tell that the job was accomplished.

Another purpose of the proposed $100 head-tax on tourists going abroad I understand is to encourage more Americans to travel in this country, but I don't know about this. Nearly every state is now promoting itself as a tourist attraction, and if it works, won't the thing balance itself out? If Texas lures 100 million dollars worth of tourist money from Louisiana, won't Louisiana lure the same amount from Texas? Whos going to come out ahead on this deal, outside of filling stations? Wouldn't it be like everybody in town trying to make money by taking in each other's washing?

Yours faithfully,
J.A.

TOWN and COUNTRY NEWS

Outdoors In Texas

A friend of mine has three appropriately labeled closets in his den.

On the door of one hangs a sign that reads "Spinning Room.' But he's not a clothmaker. In fact, he doesn't even sew.

Closet No. 2 in labeled "Casting Room." But he's not a movie director -- not even a stage director.

Room No. 3 is called the "Salt Water Room." He makes taffy, occasionally. But not in that room.

By now you fishermen have guessed waht this is all about. This gentleman is an ardent angler. He's a methodical type of man and a perfectionist to the highest degree.

In closet No. 1 he has all of his fishing gear of the spinning type. Included are spinning rods and spinning reels both open and closed faced. Also lures to match. Here he keeps canvas and leather cases for transporting his spinning rods and reels. Even ultralight equipment isn't overlooked. Also a couple of tackle boxes with those extras that go with spin-type fishing. This includes extra line and extra spools with various sizes of line already wound upon them . . . and lots of other extras.

In that second closet are his casting rods and reels with the shorter rods and the thumb-operated spool-type reels. He has a variety of reels and each with a different weight line. Here again you'll find lures appropriate to that type of fishing including the heavier top-water lures and the heavier underwater jigs, etc. Needless to say, his tackle box includes a quantity of artificial worms, bottles of pork rinds in white, black, green and polkadot. Also he has a number of sliding sinkers.

This guy doesn't go in for live bait fishing so in his tackle box you won't find either in room number one or number two any corks or floats. Also, very few split shot and the only hooks evident are the triple hooks which he substitutes on the various lures. He has a penchant for sharp hooks so in all of his tackle boxes he carries a hone. He buys the sharpest hooks he can find. Almost without exception he will substitute his own special selection of hooks for those that come with his brand new lures.

In Room No. 3 is all of his salt water fishing equipment. That includes short rods (very short and very stubby for pulling in the deep sea monsters). Also the extermely long ones for surf casting. Both types of reels are in the heavyweight class and are many times larger than either of the other two types. He has a lighter-weight rod on hand for salt water bay fishing.

As you can tell, he's geared to go almost on a moment's notice and in each tackle box he has the customary pliers, hook ejectors -- the whole gamut down to adhesive tapes, bandaids and the like.

Not overlooked is a bottle of sun tan ointment, for protection against the suns rays which are more intense over salt water.

Appropriate stringers go with each tackle box.

We just wonder if his wife would allow him another closet if he went in for fly fishing. I suppose he would name it the "Fly Room' and in it would be all the gear that's necessary for that type of pastime.

We felt real good after seeing his place because the wife is always riding herd on us about the purchase of fishing gear.

In most cases nothing pleases the fisherman more than having a new lure or a new rod or a new reel or a new motor or better yet, a new boat. Just as in golfing, there's no end to what he can buy, nor what he wants. But we've always been inclined to believe that the tension it relieves, whether golfing or fishing or whatever you are doing outdoors and away from your job is more than paid for by the doctor bills that would have been incurred had you not taken time off to relax.

So we say to the fisherman's widow, don't be too hard on him about those purchases. Sure, there is a limit -- but there's also a limit to man's life. And incidentally, fishing is good for the fem too. We know some ladies who are expert fishermen.

So not only might you go along with him on his purchases, but you might also go along with him on his trips.

You'd love it!

And he would too!

The Ham What Am Delectable

Give baked ham an enticing sweet-and-pungent flavor with Orange Raisin Sauce or an accompanying dish of Baked Peaches. Maple-honey syrup is the flavorful sweetener in both recipes.

Orange-Raisin Sauce

½ cup water
½ cup maple-honey syrup
1½ tablespoons cornstarch
2 tablespoons lemon juice
2 tablespoons raisins
1 tablespoon butter
Sections from 1 orange

Blend water, syrup, cornstarch, and lemon juice in saucepan, stirring until smooth. Add raisins. Bring to a boil over medium heat, stirring constantly. Boil gently until sauce is thickened. Add remaining ingredients. Again bring to a boil; then reduce heat and simmer 2 minutes. Serve with baked ham. Makes about 1⅓ cups.

Baked Peaches

Place 6 drained canned peach halves, cut side up, in a greased shallow baking dish. Combine ⅓ cup maple-honey syrup, ⅓ cup canned peach syrup, ¼ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon ground cinnamon, and ⅛ teaspoon ground mace. Pour over peaches. Then place about ½ teaspoon of butter in center of each peach half. Bake at 375° for 30 minutes, or until peaches are thoroughly heated. Serve warm as an accompaniment to baked ham. Makes 6 servings.

Probation Officer Speaks In Buckholts

During the past week, the Buckholts FHA Chapter invited a special guest speaker to give a talk before the high school student body. Mr. J. L. McEntire, Bell County Probation Officer, spoke to the youth of the juvenile delinquency in the United States and in Texas. Mr. McEntire explained that although so much is said about the increase of juvenile delinquency among our teenagers that it is actually only about 3 percent of the American young people who are involved in offences of the law.

He also quoted statistics concerning the increase and decrease of crimes over a period of a year which enabled the students to better understand some of his points.

TAKE YOUR PROBLEMS TO CHURCH THIS WEEK

Millions Leave Them There!

HEALING COUNCEL IS OFFERED

There are times in the lives of many that "try the soul". An overwhelming disaster strikes, a business fails or a bodily injury cripples to the extent that the victim can no longer perform the skill or vocation for which he has trained. He searches the help wanted columns of his newspaper, hunting for a job that his age or disability would enable him to perform.

Many persons who find themselves in comparable situations have been helped by some church organization, many of which have specific methods of councel, using dynamic principles to overcome failure, disaster, and fear, which are companions of a trouble mind. Many have learned to seek the solace and peace of His words and deeds. Many things can happen to a person that change everything in life for the better.

Milam Youth In Houston 'Scramble'

Milam County FFA and 4-H youth will be contestants in the Calf Scramble at the Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo which started this week.

Alvin Fail, Cameron FFA member, will be in the "Scramble' Feb. 25 and Johnny Fuller, Camron FFA, will be a contestant Feb 26.

4-H Club contestants will be Brown Ely Jr. of Gause and Murray McDermott, Cameron, on March 5; Bill Ellis Jr. and Leon Hollas, Cameron, Charles Warschak, Burlington, Gernard Kostroun and Eugene Vaculin, Buckholts, on March 6.

Stock show officials said the Houston show held its first scramble in 1942 when 24 calves were awarded. It was not dreamed that the project would result in putting some 4,000 boys into the cattle business in the next 23 years.

During the course of one season, four hundred boys now scramble for 200 calves. Half of the calf certificates are given to boys interested in dairy cattle and other half to those who prefer beef cattle.

When the calf scramble contestant wins, his work has just begun. With his cash certificate he purchases the best animal he can find. He must then care for the calf, furnish monthly records to the Houston Livestock Show and his sponsor, and return his animal to the show the next year.

As a result of the Calf Scramble contests, nearly a million and a half dollars in livestock, cash and prizes have been put into the hands of Texas youth, giving them a substantial start in business.

PROCLAMATION

GREETINGS:

Special observance of increased emphasis on our education system has been marked annually for fifteen years by a Public Schools Week in Texas.

During this period, parents are encouraged to visit the public schools, and all citizens are urged through special programs to recognize the tremendous importance of our system of education. Our goal is to make Texas public schools the finest in the Nation, and to achieve this our citizens are urged to take an active interest in the school systems and to cooperate with their school boards, superintendents, principals and teachers.

Never before in our history has there been a greater need for educated leadership. As we rush to train young people in science and technology to keep pace with world events, it is also important to remember that our public schools will furnish our tomorrow's leaders with the basic human, moral and spiritual foundations necessary for more advanced training and knowledge.

THEREFORE, I, as Governor of Texas, do hereby designate the period of March 1-5, 1965, as PUBLIC SCHOOLS WEEK in Texas.

In official recognition whereof, I hereby affix my signature this 28th day of January, 1965.

Signed: John Connally
Governor of Texas
